Workshop Outline

The goal of this workshop is to show HOW subjects and topics from across the curriculum can be integrated into highly engaging and impactful projects.

There are a lot of misconceptions about STEM (Science Technology Engineering, Maths), its cousins STEAM (which includes Arts) or DSTEAM (which also includes Design). Fundamentally, STEM is about developing authentic learning that uses the disciplines of Science, Technology, Engineering and Maths to create a learning environment that NATURALLY develops deep thinking, collaboration and problem solving.

The workshop will focus on different types of integrated STEM projects. For example, we'll explore ZEP Island™, an educational game based on building a model sustainable community for "ZEPs" - 'Zero Emissions People'. The game is an open-ended design challenge, and offers a flexible 'container' for a wide range of learning experiences. ZEP Island™ covers Biology, Physics, Chemistry, Maths, Digital Technologies, and Design Technologies from upper Primary and Middle School to Senior Secondary.

In the workshop we will also explore "Extreme Measures", a set of practical activities around measurement - from the smallest to the biggest imaginable quantities.

In this workshop, you'll cover the following key activities:

- Using Design Thinking to solve STEM problems
- Building solutions that include electronics, sensors and coding
- Fun measuring activities – e.g., how can you 'quantify your school'?

This workshop is for secondary and upper primary teachers and senior leaders, especially those who's responsibilities include STEM. It is NOT a sales event and you will be left with new openings for integrating STEM.

Facilitated by Dr Adrian Bertolini

Adrian is the Founder & Director of Learning of Intuyu Consulting. Expert educational consultants who since 2006 have operated as critical partners for schools and school systems within Australia and NZ. With degrees in Computer Science and Mechanical Engineering Adrian has a strong background in not only the theoretical underpinning of STEM and Coding but its practical application. He is one of Australia's foremost thought leaders on practical and real education that empowers and develops resilient, independent learners. He is constantly acknowledged for being an engaging, passionate and knowledgeable speaker, facilitator and coach. Adrian is trained by Mike Lloyd – CLWB.org to deliver this workshop.
